

Societal Perception towards A Child to Man: How does Society define a child as a man in different stages of his life?

The objective of this book is to find out societies attitude to the growing up process of an individual. The prime focus goes to the drawing of a holistic perspective of social definition of a child as a man in different stages of his life in the context of Bangladesh. The initial part of this paper contains the introduction and background of the topic. Next part portrays literature review as well as operational definitions. . In the middle portion I have endeavored to sketch the theoretical framework where several theories of personality have been emphasized. The later part crystal clearly shows the methodological arrangement. Here I have used the qualitative research framework and its KII technique. The next chapter has been cited with the major interpretation of findings. In this dissertation I have given my own analysis where both feminist perspective and gender perspective have been prioritized.
